Christmas Cake Mixing

With the two months to go for Christmas, Dhigali Maldives began its celebrations with the cake mixing ceremony. Several gloved hands poured in liquor as the team of the Dhigali and guests wielded their magic on the invigorating mixture weeks before Christmas. The mix contains dry fruits, dates, raisins, almonds, apricots, cherries and walnuts along with the special Christmas spirit. The dry fruits and nuts are soaked with a concoction of alcohol and spirits such like rum, brandy, whisky and honey. This will be stored in vats and continuously churned so that all the fruits would soak up the alcohol evenly. We have a special program of events for the Festive Season. The cake mixing ceremony is the beginning of the celebrations

the Island Experience

Haali Bar

Haali, Dhigali's sunset bar, shapes itself into the tropical green like a bird's nest at the west end of the island. It is the perfect place to order a cocktail + watch the evening sun colouring the tip of the island whilst creating breath-taking views of the sky + the sea.

Sunset over the sandbank, with the iconic Haali Bar in the background is the perfect way to end the day.
Saxophone Live music at sunset enhances the mood and lifts the spirits many times during the week

BoduBeru

Drums + Dance + Music

Experience the culture of Maldives in weekly evening entertainment for our guests. Boduberu, the music of the people. It means 'Big Drum'. Boduberu is typically performed by about fifteen people, including three drummers and lead singer. It begins with slow drumming that gradually rises in intensity to swell into a crescendo. At this point the men begin dancing with movements. It's said amongst the locals that Boduberu makes one's blood boil - meaning that it is impossible to be a passive observer when boduberu is being played.

Dive and Discover

Diving in Raa Atoll is popular due to the high density of thilas (submerged islands) located inside its lagoon. The marine life amongst the caves, overhangs and drop-offs is diverse.

Fenfushi Thila is in the south of the atoll. The top of the pinnacle starts at 10 feet (3 meters). As you descend, you'll see anemone coral and masked bannerfish with zebra stripes and yellow fins. At 46 feet (14 meters), you'll find impressive overhangs that continue to 92 feet (28 meters) where big tuna, Napoleon wrasses, turtles and groupers can be found.

You'll find tubastrea corals on the walls and schools of orange basslets swimming by.

It's one of the atoll's most popular dive sites. The reef has soft and hard corals, canyons, tunnels and lots of fish. Batfish will try to make friends with you but the grey and whitetip reef sharks probably won't. In the crevices, you'll see moray eels and groupers swimming amongst the corals. Depending on the season, you might see juvenile emperor angelfish.

Their blue and white markings look like a drawing of an earthquake's epicenter.
